

Drugs and alcohol - What would you do???

A parent finds some suspicious things in their child's bedroom and is worried that their child may be using drugs. Whether or not the person using substances is accessing support for their use, there is help and support for the family members. It can be really hard to know how to deal with drugs and alcohol within the family - especially if the person using doesn't think they have a problem or refuses to get help.

There is free, confidential 1-1 advice and support available to families who are struggling with someone else's substance misuse.
